

Preparing for the Next Level - Devise a Blueprint for Success

By Ted Miller and Amie Gray, DataKey Consulting, LLC

You remember the days when it was just a handful of employees, working hard and sharing responsibilities to do whatever was needed to get this business off the ground. It was an exciting – albeit stressful – time and the possibilities seemed limitless. Many years later, after countless hours spent winning customers, investing in growth, and cultivating employees, you’ve built a successful business. And now you’re ready to bring your team to the next level: expanding responsibilities, growing the company, improving strategic thinking. Is your team up to the challenge?

The key to ensuring the future of your business is to develop the skills and knowledge your team needs to succeed. Company leaders must be recognized and equipped with tools they can use to drive business objectives and catalyze growth and change throughout the organization. With a strong leadership team in place, major challenges like expanding the company and long-term strategic planning can become shared responsibilities with improved prospects of success.

Building a talented leadership team is no small feat. It takes a deep understanding of the business, the management team, and the corporate culture to envision the path to future success by investing in the people you have today.

In order to prepare your team for the next level, ask yourself the following questions:

- 1. Who in your company today has the abilities and influence to lead? You need to begin cultivating those employees today to equip them with the skills and know-how they’ll need to succeed.
- 2. What needs to be done to improve vital business processes? If you have a major goal in mind, you must examine how your current business processes will enable you to reach that goal. If they’re hindering you, it’s time for a change.

Like top athletes, executives and managers excel with professional coaching. Top business performers routinely tap networks of successful peers and subject matter experts to gain insights, knowledge and skill. To stay competitive, the best companies develop the top management team for superior leadership and potential successors.

- What aspects of our culture will help us reach our goals and what aspects will be obstacles? Every company has innate strengths and weaknesses in the corporate culture. It's important to understand how you can effectively leverage those strengths and overcome weaknesses to achieve strategic outcomes.

It takes time and dedication to reflect on these questions, consider the potential risks and opportunities, and devise effective solutions. However, this process is absolutely essential to achieving larger, long-term objective. Bringing your company to the next level is entirely dependent on having a solid team in place to drive progress.
